Heart Failure

Each company is like a human body with individual departments functioning as organs that are indispensable for the body to be healthy. These organs are interconnected by information circulating like blood in a body and whenever there is a clog somewhere and the flow is not as smooth as elsewhere, the resulting heart failure may leave consequences lasting for days or even years. Each person in your team is indispensable and has his or her role. A clot formed in one place of the body can clog an artery in a completely different place. Likewise, a clogged flow of information at one point of the company may clog the flow in the whole company.
